

This is the progress report for week 2

Kotlin made me surprise a lot. First, I would say it is a beginner-friendly natural language, really easy to use. And one of the best parts is that with better syntax, I feel like I am using less code compared to a few other languages.

After this unit, I hope I can work more on programming skills as well as learn more about design.

I enjoy the activity when I do not have to actually go to class but still can study well with the provided material. =))
